New research, protocols and bioactive products have been developed to take your prophylaxis protocol and home-care recommendations to the next level. This webinar will cover a review of current research/guidelines in biofilm focus care for disease prevention, provide an understanding of what tools, technology, and products to use for patients and new biofilm focus care protocols for prophylaxis and home-care recommendations.

- Course Title: Understanding Restorative Options for Direct Composite Restorations
- Course Instructor: Robert A. Lowe, DDS
- Description: For most general practitioners, direct composite restorations are a large part of everyday dental practices. Many clinicians have a "favorite material" or "favorite technique" that is universally applied to all clinical situations. Given the variety of patients and clinical issues that are presented, it is important that the dentist "be the doctor" and prescribe the restorative material that is best for each clinical situation! This webinar will explore different approaches to the restoration of a Class II cavity preparation based on clinical parameters and discuss techniques and material choices that will help to maximize results and restorative longevity.
